[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN]

EASTERN DATES TO MARCH 29

EUROPE.

Dispatches from Versailles.

VERSAILLES, March 28—Marseilles continues tranquil

At Lyons the regular authorities have resumed the administration of affairs and at St Etienne, where the Reds obtained control for a while, the government officers have been restored and order now prevails

The army of Prince Frederick Charles, occupying France, which has been in motion for a few days past, is now stationary

The Election at Paris.

PARIS, March 28 —Le Soir reports that 180,000 votes were cast at the election yesterday, about one half the number polled at the last plebiscite

The Journal Officiel contains an article signed by Vaillant, advocating the assassination of the Duke d'Aumale

The Treaty at Brussels

BRUSSELS March 28 — Plenipotentiaries of France and Germany met at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the French Legation Credentials were exchanged and preparations made for future meetings

The English Parliament

LONDON, March 28 —The House of Lords adjourned to night after an uninteresting discussion on the defects of the present military system.

In the House of Commons, the drift of the debate was towards legislation to prevent the exportation of arms to belligerents Southe, James, Palmer and others, advocated parliamentary action, but the Attorney General thought the existing laws sufficient Increased stringency would tend to make such restrictions inoperative

WASHINGTON CITY

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, March 28 —In the Senate Fre linghuysen obtained the floor and spoke in eulogy of President Grant and criticised the action of Sumner in precipitating this discussion in advance of the report of the Commissioners from which alone Congress and the public could form an opinion

Sumner briefly defended his course, saying he had done simply what he believed to be right

Schurz next addressed the Senate He did not think the report of the Commission which had just returned from a pleasant jaunt to San Domingo, would prove influential either in the Senate or before the country, for he thought they were already effectually disposed of

Howe continued his reply to Sumner's speech of yesterday in defence of the President in the San Domingo matter. In conclusion, he said the mission of the Republican party was not ended

In reply to questions by Howe and Stewart, Schurz denied that discretionary powers were vested in the President, and cited them to the debates of the Senate in 1859, when Buchanan asked discretionary powers to protect our citizens in transit over the Isthmus of Panama The Senate then indignantly refused The fact was that President Grant had fallen into the mistake of supposing that he was the United States of America He defended the course of Sumner, declaring that he deserved the gratitude of the country. He said the defenders of the administration had apparently acknowledged themselves defeated on Constitutional grounds Hereupon he proceeded in a sarcastic manner to comment upon the speech of Howe, and said if it were proven that orders had been issued to our naval commanders in gross violation of the Constitution, then something more than rhetorical flourishes about General Grant's service, or the Secretary of the Navy, would be required to answer the proof He argued that under the Constitutional clause, vesting in Congress the war making power, the Executive could not commit an act of war unless, in case of actual invasion of the territory of the United States, or by express Congressional authority The instructions of the President to our naval force, directing them in certain contingencies, to fire upon vessels of Hayti, a power with which we are at peace, was most clearly an usurpation of the war making power

A lively discussion between Schurz and Morton occurred upon the proper interpretation of the dispatch that the United States would regard with disfavor any attempt on the part of Mexico to interfere with Texas during pending annexation negotiations Morton contended that it was a direct threat of war, and Schurz that it was nothing but an ordinary diplomatic correspondence Before Schurz concluded the Senate adjourned

In the House it was agreed that a vote be taken on the [Ku Klux?] bill next Monday,—the time of debate being equally divided between the two parties The bill is very long and comprehensive The main features have already been published. The debate to day possessed no interest The House at three o'clock P M adjourned

Other Washington News.

WASHINGTON, March 28 —The San Domingo Commissioners have agreed upon a report excepting upon the subject of health and life of the Dominican Republic They may not be ready to report till Thursday.

The Secretary of the Navy (Robeson) has addressed an important letter to Admiral Lee defending the President

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 29 —A frame house on Sacramento street, corner of Stockton, occupied above by J Hamlin as a lodging house and below as a fruit store, was partially destroyed by fire last evening Loss, under $1,000 One of the tenants was arrested on suspicion of firing the premises for the insurance, but no charge has been booked against him.

Frederick H Rockhart from somewhere in the interior of this State or Oregon, was brought to the calaboose from the American Exchange, last evening, hopelessly insane

The coroner's jury found a verdict, in the case of the death of Omri Hixon, aged 36, a native of Canada, that he came to his death from narcotic poison, viz morphine Prof Howden testified that he had analyzed the chloral hydrate and found no morphine in it The case has made considerable noise, from the fact that a direct charge had been made by a daily paper to the effect that his death was caused by a dose of chloral hydrate

GENERALITIES

A young married couple, stopping at an Indianapolis hotel, blew out the gas An Irish porter, attracted by the odor, saved their lives, and the happy bridegroom gave him a dollar

Marcus Morton tried sixteen times without success to be elected Governor of Massachusetts At last, in 1840 on the sixteenth trial he won by one majority So much for perseverance

She said that notwithstanding this, she had heard that he was going to have Mrs. Crittenden return, and if he did so, that one of them would have to die

THE FIGHT AT DAME EUROPA'S SCHOOL

SHOWING HOW THE GERMAN BOY THRASHED THE FRENCH BOY, AND HOW THE ENGLISH BOY LOOKED ON

Mrs Europa kept a dame's school, where boys were well instructed in modern languages, fortification, and the use of the globes Her connection and credit were good for there was no other school where so sound and liberal an education could be obtained Many of her old pupils held masterships in other important establishments two of which may be mentioned as consisting chiefly of dark, swarthy youths, decidedly stupid and backward for their years, while a third was a large modern academy full of rather cocky fellows, who talked big about the institutions of their school, and talked for most part through their nose

The lads at Mrs Europa's were of all sizes and sizes—good boys and bad boys, boys and slow boys, industrious boys and lazy boys, peaceable boys and pugnacious boys, well behaved boys and vulgar boys Of course the good old dame could not manage them all So, as she did not like the masters to be prying about the playground out of school, she chose from among the largest and most trustworthy of her pupils monitors who had authority over the rest of the boys, and kept the unruly ones in order Those five all the time of which we are writing, were Louis, William, Aleck, Joseph and John

If a dispute arose among any of the boys, the monitors had to examine the cause and if possible to settle it Should it be necessary to fight it out, they were to see fair play, and to counterm when it had gone far enough at all times to uphold justice, and to put down bullying

The power thus placed in the monitors was for the most part, exercised with discretion and to the manifest advantage Trumpery little quarrels which might otherwise have led to the breaking up of bruises and black eyes, and sometimes a time when two little urchins, with their backers into a ring, would be ready to fight about nothing, the appearance of Master Monitor would put them to flight with a few words Then the monitors themselves would be fighting, and then

[illegible] Louis [illegible] grotto in [illegible] ful How [illegible] over the [illegible] side, Joh [illegible] more produ [illegible] beauty, however [illegible] island, separated from [illegible] between twenty and thirty fe [illegible] arbor was a mere tool house [illegible] himself up almost all playtime tur [illegible] lathe, or making nets, or sharpening [illegible] or cutting out boats to sail on the river [illegible] John was fond of a holiday now and then, and when he was tired of slaving away in his own garden, he would punt himself across the brook, and pay a visit to his neighbor, Louis, who was always cheerful and hospitable, and glad to see him Many and many a happy hour did he spend in his friend's arbor, lying at full length on the soft moss and eating grapes and drinking lemonade and thinking how much pleasanter it was over there than in his own close fusty shop, with its dirt and litter, and its eternal smell of tar and nets, and shavings Anyhow, thought Johnnie I make more profit out of my garden than any of the other fellows, so I must put up with a few bad smells For Dame Europa by way of encouraging habits of industry, allowed the boys to engage pretty extensively in commercial pursuits, and it was said that Master John, who had been working unusually hard of late, had sometimes trebled or quadrupled his half yearly pocket money out of the produce of his tool house and garden

By the side of Louis's domain was that of William, the biggest and strongest of all the monitors He set up, however, for being a very studious and peaceable boy and made the rest of the school believe that he had never provoked a quarrel in his life He was rather fond of singing psalms and carrying testaments about in his pocket, and many of the boys thought Master William a bit of a humbug. He was as proud as anybody of his garden, but he never went to work in it without casting envious eyes on two little flower beds which now belonged to Louis, but which ought by right he thought to belong to him Indeed it was noticed that in old days before [illegible] Louis or William came to the school one of Louis's predecessors in the garden had pulled up some stakes which served for a boundary and cribbed a piece of his neighbor's ground For a long while William had set his [illegible] back again but he kept his wishes to himself and nobody suspected that so good and religious a boy could be guilty of coveting what was admitted by the whole school to be the property of another Only one boy, his fag Orteig did William take into his confidence in the matter This was a sharp shrewd lad named Mark, not over scrupulous in what he did full of deep tricks and dodges, and so on

One day Louis began [illegible] looking as meek as possible [illegible] (for beggel anything) I am a dome[illegible] loving boy —

"Very much so, indeed," replied Louis with a sneer "It's lessons [illegible] asking I suppose, that you have [illegible] from the 'Brummagem brusier for [illegible] months or more—the fellow that bragged to a friend of mine that, though you used to be the clumsiest fellow he ever set eyes on he had made you as sharp as a needle with your fists"

'A friend of yours, you said did you my dear' Perhaps that was the Sheffield slasher who told my fag Mark, that he had made your arm strong enough to throw a ball or stone more than a hundred yards

'Come come, interrupted the dame I can't listen to such ugly words You five monitors must settle the matter quietly among yourselves but no fighting mind The day for that sort of thing is quite gone by" And the old lady then toddled off and left the boys alone

'I wouldn't press it Bill if I were you said John in his deep gruff voice looking out of his shop window on the other side of the water I think it's rather hard lines for Louis I do indeed"

'Always ready to oblige, my dear John said William, and so the new boy's claim to the garden was withdrawn

What shall I do now Mark?' asked William, turning to his friend It seems to me that there is an end of it all

'Not a bit' was the reply "Louis is still as savage as a bear. He'll break out directly you see if he don't."

'I have been grossly insulted began

Homes for Those who Are Coming.

The rapidly increasing inquiry for farming lands and the sales that are being made daily at advancing prices indicate a considerable augmentation of our population and show that many of those who are arriving are furnished with means to establish themselves in good condition among us, and to help greatly in building up the prosperity of the State.

But of course it will not be within the power of all who come to settle in our State and till the soil to buy lands which have long been occupied, in the best and most favored localities. It will not be within reach of their means to do so, nor would it accord with the inclinations of all who are coming, to buy farms in the long-settled parts of the State. Many will go from choice into the newer places and still more will go into such localities because they can there obtain either free homesteads or very cheap lands.

The amount of lands yet untaken, but fit for occupation, lying along the foot hills and bases of the mountains that skirt the Wallamet valley, is so large as to be quite surprising. Considerable inquiry has been made into this matter by those interested in it, and especially by the Oregon and California Railroad company, to whom belong the odd sections. We have not been informed as to the results of these inquiries and observations, further than that many thousands of acres of such lands have been discovered, and that the value of the Company is deemed much greater than was at first supposed.

[illegible] when the road shall have been [illegible] as the Umpqua valley, so as to make it desirable for those in search of [illegible] to that section of the State, large [illegible] of good lands, which many people [illegible] heretofore deemed almost valueless, will be taken up and made the seats of beautiful and prosperous homes. There is room in that quarter for a very large number of people, and the railroad grant there is not very valuable. Probably the Oregon and European Land Company will make an effort to settle a considerable portion of the [illegible] immigrants in that locality.

[illegible] think the largest body of good land [illegible] and unoccupied is embraced in the grant to the west side railroad company. The whole country from the Tualatin Plains to [illegible] a fertile and excellent. An industrious German population would in the space of [illegible] years convert it into a garden. Little [illegible] yet occupied; but in a few years it will certainly contain a dense population.

We have indicated some of the places in the west part of the State where the settler can go and establish a home. Besides the localities enumerated, there is nearly the whole of Eastern Oregon lying open and inviting settlers. In all parts of it there are fertile valleys which only await the hand of the tiller to make them bloom.

The Washington [illegible], referring to the deposition of Sumner and the controversies caused by it, says: We shall not disrupt the Republican party. We are heard of a thousand different matters which were each in [illegible] to be a knell of our party, but have seen it outlive them all and advance with free and [illegible] strides to renewed [illegible]. Men and [illegible] town [illegible] pies will [illegible] and railroads [illegible] differ and contend; the people will [illegible] ately discover and sustain the right. Personal differences may agitate [illegible] create temporary excitement through a land; but the steady current of thought will move on in the country and men and parties be judged by their substantial acts and achievements in public affairs. In this conviction we await the calm judgment of the people on the men and measures of the Republican party as a whole, with entire confidence of their hearty approval.

A table compiled from returns in the census office is published in late Eastern journals, by which the assessed value of property in each of the States is shown, with the average assessment per capita in each. The average assessment has a very wide range, from $133 to each person in North Carolina to $1,355 in Rhode Island. It is curious to note that the assessed property value of Massachusetts is almost double that of Illinois, though the population of the latter is nearly double that of the former State. Virginia seems to have only one-fourth as much property as Massachusetts. But of course the value of property in different States is not assessed on the same basis.

Governor Grover is one of those men who always come to the front when he thinks it necessary that his party will have the power and means to reward him. Just now he is employing every possible effort to fix things so that he can go to the United States Senate if the party wins next year. This is because he imagines its chances for victory to be [illegible]. But if he deemed the odds heavy against his party, he would skulk, keep out of the way [illegible] and be very, very prudent in every way. The Governor, however, is mistaken in that belief; an easy victory next June. The emigration this year will probably give the State to the Republicans and leave the Governor and his party out.

A few years ago the Legislature of California showed a proper appreciation of home manufactures by offering liberal bounties for their encouragement within the borders of the State. At the beginning of the year 1860, California had more than $12,000 premiums for various productions, among which were raw and manufactured cotton, flax, silk, wine, and many other articles. It was believed that the development of her industries was much accelerated by this course. Might it not be well for the Legislature of Oregon to second to some extent the efforts of our State Agricultural Society in this direction?

The Washington correspondent of the New York Times invites those people who are so busily engaged in declaring that Mr. Sumner has been degraded because of his opposition to the annexation of San Domingo to examine this fact, viz.: Senators Edmunds, Pool, Sawyer and Scott, who opposed San Domingo, and voted for the rejection of the treaty last July—were among the strongest advocates of the change. Senators Fenton, Sprague, Wilson and Spencer, who voted for the treaty, were equally active against the change. This proves conclusively that the change was made on other grounds.

We would like to know what has become of the great "negro equality" issue on which the Democracy were once trying to convulse the nation? Like most of the other "time honored principles" it has "gone glimmering through the dream of things that were."

For many weeks all Oregon has been waiting for fine weather, railroad work and general resumption of activity. We have the first; and no doubt the rest will soon follow.

OREGON.

It is mentioned as a wonderful fact at Salem that Gov. Grover has begun to ride to the Penitentiary!

It is said that more than 2,000 shade trees have been planted this spring along the public streets in Salem. Owners of property there never did a more sensible thing.

The mills at Coos Bay, according to a recent letter from that place, are about to shut down on account of the low prices of lumber in San Francisco. Many men at the Bay are already put out of employment.

A correspondent of the Statesman writes from Coos Bay that the bar at that place has been rougher this winter than ever before known. No outward bound vessels had been able to cross it for the space of two months.

THE TERRITORIES.

The surveying brig Fauntleroy will be employed during the coming summer in Puget Sound.

The Jefferson (Iowa) Era is not to be removed to Kalama, W.T., as was reported some time ago.

Anderson Cox has been appointed Receiver and William Stephens, Register at the Walla Walla Land Office.

The mail service from Montpelier to Olympia will be continued by Coggan and Lockwood, under the contract now held by Corbett & Co. of Portland.

The Auditor of Washington Territory has decided that taxes must be paid on the amount of debts due the person assessed, and that he cannot deduct his own debts from the assessment.

Edwin Eells, recently appointed Indian Agent at the Skokomish Reservation, W. T., was born in Washington Territory, and is the first man born in the Territory who has ever received an official appointment within it.

The Olympia Tribune of the 25th has this: A quarrel occurred at Tacoma yesterday, between McCann, the dancing master, and a livery stable keeper named Ellis, in which the latter was shot with a pistol in the hands of the former, the ball entering the lower part of his face and passing through his head, without inflicting a mortal wound. We could not obtain minute particulars of the affair, but learn that the trouble arose from the hard driving of a team hired by McCann from Ellis.

CURRENT NOTES.

The Hon. Hugh McCulloch has rented a banking house in London for $10,000 a year.

San Domingo is said to be a place "where every prospect pleases, and only man is vile?"

The Washington papers want their district or Territory called simply "Columbia," instead of the "District of Columbia."

New York expects that the late reduction of the commutation tax upon immigrants from two and a half dollars to a dollar and a half per head will attract a larger number of foreign immigrants vessels to that port.

Since the 27th of February the Deputy United States Marshal—Tennessee—has broken up twelve illicit distilleries and destroyed thirty-six thousand gallons of beer. This has not been accomplished without danger, the Federal party having been attacked by bushwhackers, though none of them were injured.

The New York Evening Post, after having argued for months that Pennsylvania was for protection, because a tariff would put money in the pockets of the Pennsylvania coal and iron men, concludes now to try the other side, and in a labored effort tries to convince these same Pennsylvania coal and iron men, that their pecuniary interests require them to advocate free trade.

The "personal journalism" appears to be catching, as they have got it at Chillicothe, Ohio, in the pulpit. Elder Millard got up on a Sunday recently and denounced Deacon Decamp for insinuating that the Elder was sweet on a grass widow, when the Deacon talked back, threatened to put a head on the Elder, and finally shut off the gas, and left things darker than the Elder's character.

There are two men now living in Modoc, Indians, who five years ago, went to law over a fence, where the amount in litigation did not exceed twenty five dollars. The case is at present before the Supreme Court, and the costs thus far amount to three thousand dollars. That rail fence is a secondary matter now, and those two individuals are fighting over the costs. Either of them, we suppose, would gladly pay the twenty-five dollars and get rid of the case.

The Louisville Courier-Journal does not wish to engage an agricultural editor. "There is," it gives notice, "no such position on this paper. We do not intend that there ever shall be. We may mislead our readers in politics and morals and religion, and all that sort of thing, but never shall they have it to say that we permitted any man, through these columns, to dilute and undermine and demoralize and run frantic whatever little knowledge of agriculture they may happen to have."

A Chip of the Old Block.

A "GOOSE" IN THE SAN FRANCISCO POLICE COURT.

The hero of the following story from a San Francisco paper of recent date is well known in Yamhill and perhaps in some other parts of Oregon:

A female client of that celebrated barrister, Patrick Cummins, appeared to answer to a complaint made against her for stealing a goose. James B. Newby, another barrister equally celebrated, appeared for the prosecution, and Sam Platt skirmished around the case in some capacity not quite settled by either side. Cummins demurred to the complaint because his client was charged in it with stealing an animal "unknown to American civilization" and to Cummins, and unrecorded in even the most conscientiously minute natural histories. Requested to explain himself, he said that his client was charged with stealing a "goos," and he did not know what a go-os was. [Giggles from all except Newby.]

Newby said how did they know he wrote out the complaint?

Cumming said he knew he did.

Newby—Prove it! Prove it!

Cummins—Do you deny it?

Newby—Prove it! Prove it!

Sam Platt—Newby told me he wrote it; and, besides, yesterday I asked him to spell "goose," and he could not do it.

Newby subsided, and Judge Sawyer sustained the demurrer.

After the dismissal of the complaint Sam Platt went out, brought in the complainant and swore out another complaint. Newby objected to this—he had been retained in the case.

Platt replied that he had been retained also to "assist" him.

Newby said he hadn't.

Platt said, "You're a liar, and I'll bring her (the complainant) to morrow and prove it." Newby looked daggers. Mr. Tighe, another barrister, whispered, "Go for him, go for him'" but Newby didn't, and the affair subsided. All this latter conversation occurred across the table and did not reach the judicial ear.

No story for many years has been more popular in England than the one we publish in this issue of the OREGONIAN, entitled the "Fight at Dame Europa's School." It was published in pamphlet form in England, and in a few weeks the extraordinary number of 126,000 copies were sold. A clergyman named Pullen is the author. The writer evinces quite too much prejudice against the Emperor William, but he has produced a very readable story.

In New York it is rather dangerous for a young lady to invite half a dozen friends to spend the evening with her, for ten to one the society papers will describe it as a grand reception, and then what a row with the uninvited!

PACIFIC COAST DISPATCHES.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

INTERIOR CALIFORNIA DISPATCHES.

HAYWARD'S, March 29.—The Coroner's jury yesterday, in the case of the murder of Nelson Carson, Norwegian, returned a verdict of death from a knife wound inflicted by Wm. Powers. Powers was examined to-day and remanded to the San Leandro jail to await the action of the grand jury.

STOCKTON, March 29.—A man named Francisco Sota, while building a fence, dropped dead this afternoon.

Great Fire at Truckee.

TRUCKEE, March 29.—About half past one this afternoon the Kennebec Hotel, situated on Front street, was discovered to be on fire, and in less than ten minutes half of Front street was in flames. Mr. Hill, proprietor of the Kennebec, lost his youngest child. When found it was nothing but a mass of charred flesh. The fire raged fiercely until 5:20 P. M. One hundred and fifteen or twenty houses were totally destroyed. Wilbert's boot and shoe store was totally destroyed. A small portion of the stock was saved; fully insured in the Home Mutual. Shinn's drug store was totally destroyed; most of the stock saved. The stock in Weller's fire proof was damaged. No insurance on the building, which is badly damaged. Burckhalter & Sisson and Wallace & Co. lost nothing but the woodwork of buildings, which were fully insured. Canavan's blacksmith shop was entirely destroyed. All of Chinatown was burned. The Central Pacific freight house was burned to the ground, with a number of other business houses. The loss is very heavy. The town has received a very severe blow. A portion of the buildings burned were lately put up on the site of ones burned in January.

Family Poisoned at Chico.

CHICO, March 29.—The family of B. Bryant of this place, consisting of himself, wife and three children, were poisoned Sunday evening by eating what they supposed to be mushrooms, but which, however, proved to be of a more poisonous nature. They were all attacked Monday morning with severe spells of vomiting, when medical aid was called, but too late. Yesterday evening the girl, 12, and boy, 10 years of age died. The mother and smaller child are yet very low; still hopes are entertained of their recovery. The father is much better.

LATER.—Since writing the above we learn that the mother and remaining child will probably not last till morning.

WHAT IS DYSPEPSIA? THE QUESTION SETTLED.—Two young medical students were disputing the other day at the house of a mutual friend, as to the nature of dyspepsia. One said the primary cause was diseased liver; the other insisted that the disease originated in the epigastrium. "I can tell you what dyspepsia is, for I've been there," observed the host laughingly. "Well, said one of the young medicos, "dyspepsia," said he, "is a complaint that you can't refuse, and that PLANTATION BITTERS cures in six weeks!" The person who made this remark resides at 198 Greenwich avenue, and his name is Martin W. Myers.

Sea Moss Farine from pure Irish Moss, for Blanc Mange, Puddings, Custards, Creams, &c., &c. The cheapest, healthiest and most delicious food in the world.

No WONDER.—So many worthless medicines are advertised for the cure of various diseases, and when tried "found wanting," that the invalid loses all faith in specifics. We have yet to learn however of the first failure of WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY to cure coughs, colds and pulmonary disease.

Cheap water Pipe.

THE ASPHALTUM PRESSURE PIPE COMPANY, of San Francisco, having purchased of the patentees the sole right to manufacture on this coast, are now making an article at their works, at Alameda Point, that will supply the general want of a cheap and durable water pipe. The invention originated in France, where these pipes are extensively used, as well as in Germany; in fact, all over Europe, almost entirely superseding, for all ordinary purposes the use of iron. It is no new thing, having been in use twenty years.

Its Durability.

Being impartishable and insensible to atmospheric influences or chemical properties of the earth, it never changes, and is consequently much more durable than iron, which corrodes, and in time leaks.

It is a Non-Conductor,

And will not freeze except at a remarkably low temperature, and even then its expansive power is greater than that of frozen water. In warm weather it acts as a cooler to water passing through it.

Neutrality to Acids and Alkalis.

This pipe is not affected by acids and alkalis, nor is it affected by galvanic currents—consequently is invaluable in conducting telegraph wires under ground through tunnels and under bridges.

Elasticity.

The elasticity of this pipe prevents its bursting from outward shocks or concussions. The interior of the pipes being glazed, are as smooth as porcelain, and consequently are never clogged by adhering sediment.

Lightness.

The mean weight of these pipes to iron is as one to five, which not only facilitates handling, but reduces the cost of transportation.

Laying the Pipe

Is a simple matter—can be laid by any laboring man of ordinary intelligence; but the Company, if required, will always furnish a competent person, free of expense, to oversee the proper laying of the pipe. Contracts taken for any required length of pipe from water or mining companies, and warranted to stand according to contract.

Pipe Under Pressure

Can be seen at the office of the Company. We are the only parties manufacturing this pipe on the Pacific Coast under this patent. All other offered is spurious and an infringement.

Cheapness.

The cost when laid, including connections, is about one-quarter that of lead and one-half that of iron.

We manufacture this pipe in lengths of twelve feet, and ship it everywhere, by all sorts of conveyances—no special care being required. We manufacture it of any size from one to twelve inches.

Pressure.

We manufacture according to the pressure required from 1 to 600 pounds to the inch, and guarantee it to stand the pressure

Prices.

CURIOSITIES OF NOMENCLATURE.—Yesterday, happening upon the register of the rigged merchant vessels—steamers and sailers—of the United States, we went through the thing a little, partly out of curiosity and partly to make an item. One of the first things observable was that a very large proportion of the twenty thousand and upwards of vessels registered were named after persons; and the second, that the names of females greatly preponderated over all others. The names commencing with Mary numbered 630; commencing with John, 553; commencing with William, 508; with George, 333; Charles, 209; Thomas, 208; James, over 200; Sarah, 200; Miss. 93; Elisabeth, 89; Emma, 89; Margaret, 73; Nellie, 55; City of 52; Ellen, 70, etc., etc. There are 14 American Eagles, while the eagle birds and other names in which eagle is a part are very numerous. Named after Generals, 223; after Commodores, 19. Names of States are found to the number of 255, of which Virginia appears 32 times; Delaware, 21; Oregon, 19; California, 17; Idaho, 16; New York, 15; Alabama, Nevada, Ohio and Pennsylvania each 10; Florida, 11; and other States ranging from 9 to 2, South Carolina being the only State which does not appear. Some of the names indicate that the owners were eccentric. Thus, there are such names as Let-Me-Go; Let-Her-Rip; Old Jem McKitrick; X-10 U-S; I Am; I Am Here; Only Daughter; Only Son; Try Again; We're Here, etc., etc. One man who wanted to name his vessel after the barn-yard fowl that crows, christened her "Shanty Clear"—near enough in pronunciation, but rather wide of the correct orthography.

SUDDEN DEATH AT KALAMA.—The first death within the limits of Kalama, occurred Tuesday night. Capt. Charles H. Reed, an old man, long a resident on Lewis river, W. T., was found dead in his bed yesterday morning. He went from his home on Lewis river to Kalama on Monday in a poor state of health, and complained during the afternoon and evening, of feeling particularly unwell, though he did not express any unusual apprehensions. During the evening, several persons who knew him well, called at his room and found it to attend him through the night, but he declined all their offers, declaring that he did not need any assistance. He was a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity, and his burial was at once taken charge of by that Order.

AT HALF MAST.—The flags of the P. T. Co's steamers were carried at half-mast yesterday in token to the memory of Stephen T. Church, whose death in California we announced yesterday morning. Mr. Church was an owner in the P. T. Co., and had been for a long time the Secretary of the company. He resigned a few months ago in consequence of ill health. He had been associated for nearly fifteen years with the McCully Brothers either at Harrisburg or in the forwarding business, and those gentlemen both speak of his worth and high sense of honor in the most flattering terms. A good man has gone.

CONDITION OF THE STREETS.—At the meeting of the Council last evening, Mr. Hill called attention to the fact that there is gross neglect of the ordinances in relation to nuisances and obstructions in the streets. He said that the condition of things is getting beyond endurance. Brush and all sorts of refuse matter are thrown into the streets and allowed to remain for days. Obstructed wide-walks are also common. He thought it time that steps be taken to have the present state of things remedied. His complaint was understood to refer to the negligence of the Street Commissioner.

A MISSOURI COLONY FOR OREGON.—Messrs. Hall, Perry & Woodward have received a letter from Warrensburg, Missouri, making particular inquiry about Oregon, and stating that an emigrant colony is forming at that place for Oregon. The letter mentions Capt. F. O. McCown, of Oregon City, who is home on business, and states that if his representations concerning our State be confirmed, the colony will start. We don't know what the Captain has said, but our Missouri friends may believe every word he has told them, and come along at once.

PUGET SOUND MAILS.—The Olympian of Sept says: We learn that the overland mails on the route to Monticello, lately run by Coggan & Co., under the contract of Mr. Winsor, has been awarded to Corbett & Co., of Portland, for whom it is now carried by Coggan & Co. Messrs. Lockwood and Coggan will be in Olympia in a few days, and will make all arrangements, if there is any lacking, to carry the mails satisfactorily.

ST. HELENS MILL CO.—At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the St. Helens Mill Co., on Saturday, the 25th inst., Geo. A. Ladd was elected by the removal of S. B. Abbot, from the State. J. C. Ladd was elected President to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Jas. Lott, and S. M. Watts was elected Secretary to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Wm. Pickering.

A CHANCE TO BUY A FARM.—In another place in our columns will be found the advertisement of a dairy farm for sale. Mr. Gile, the owner, is now in this city and can be seen at the store of Williams & Myers, opposite the N. P. T. Co's steamship office. The advertisement says "600 acres," but the farm contains 690 acres. There is a good chance for some new-comer to get a home and a farm already made.

WHEAT FOR SHIPMENT.—This staple of Oregon is coming forward again in rather lively style. The warehouse Senator brought down yesterday about two thousand bags for shipment on the Prince of Wales, and the Alert, in the same trade, brought over two thousand bags, all of which was delivered in the ship's hold. The total is something over eight thousand bushels.

WORSE THAN AT FIRST THOUGHT.—We learned yesterday that the elder of the McLaran brothers, hurt by the fall of the rink building, was injured more seriously than at first supposed. His bruises which he did not seem to mind much at first, have proved very painful, while the younger brother is getting on finely.

WARNER NOTICE.—Mr. Leonhard Stark, the proprietor of the Globe Hotel, at the corner of North Front and C street near the steamship landing, has lately enlarged the house, refitted and refurnished it in good style, and will re-open it to the public on Saturday April 1st.

HIBBARD & CO.—We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Hibbard & Co. in to-day's issue. They offer for sale a large assortment of doors, blinds, windows, hardware, lumber, wagon and carriage material, provisions, grain, hay, grain, and feed.

GOING ON A VISIT.—Sheriff Bills intends to leave on the next outgoing steamer for Indiana, on a visit. He expects to be absent about six weeks, and to be back again in time to attend to the official duties connected with the next term of the Circuit Court.

DEPUTY SHERIFF.—Mr. Geo. H. Durham is about to retire from the office of Deputy Sheriff, to go into the practice of law. Mr. Bills has selected Mr. W. R. Sewall as his successor, to enter upon active duty on the 1st of April.

AN ATTEMPT TO DROWN.—A woman who was "full" of beer," attempted suicide Tuesday night by drowning, but she was unfortunately prevented by a party of spectators.

CORRECTION.—In our account of the meeting of veterans of the Mexican war, the name of "W. W. Shade" should have been W. W. Shadd.

THE COURTS.

WEDNESDAY, March 29, 1871.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT—DEADY, JUDGE.—United States vs John Brown, Paul Oberheim and Thos. Scott; convicted on indictment for impeding the due administration of justice; each defendant fined $500 and costs, and to stand committed to the jail of Marion county, in default of payment, one day for each $2 of the judgment.

United States vs John Gasson, indicted for same offense as above; on motion of District Attorney, nolle prosequi entered and defendant discharged.

United States vs John Brown; indictment for selling liquor to Indians; continued by consent till next term of the Court.

The trial jury was dismissed for the term.

The Court adjourned till 10 A. M. to-morrow.

THE HOLBERT CASE.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE TO THE PRESIDENT BY THE DISTRICT JUDGE AND ATTORNEY FOR COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE.

The following is a copy of the paper forwarded by Judge Deady to the President for the purpose of having the latter commute the sentence of Holbert lately convicted of being a retail liquor dealer without having paid the tax:

To the President of the United States of America: On March 9, 1871, the Grand Jury in the U. S. District Court for the District of Oregon, by their indictment duly found and presented, accused one J. G. Holbert of the crime of carrying on the business of a retail liquor dealer at Salem, in the district aforesaid, continuously between September 15, 1870, and October 15, 1870, without having paid the special tax in that behalf required. On March 16, 1871, the defendant was tried upon the indictment before me, by a jury who found him guilty as charged in the indictment, and recommended him to the mercy of the Court. On Tuesday, March 21, 1871, sitting in the District Court aforesaid, I sentenced the defendant to six months imprisonment in the county jail of the county of Marion, and that he pay a fine of one thousand dollars and the costs of the proceeding, that being the lowest penalty allowed by Section 44 of the act of July 20, 1868 (15 Stat. 125), prescribing the punishment for such offence. The circumstances of the case as they were disclosed by the testimony given to the jury on trial are briefly these:

During the year 1870 the defendant kept a shop in Salem, Oregon, and was licensed and paid tax as a retail dealer and manufacturer of confectionery. In the front room of his shop he kept a soda fountain and sold soda water. Early in September, 1870, he received into his shop a barrel of whisky, and between the dates charged in the indictment, deposited or placed in one of the compartments of said fountain, from time to time, nearly equal portions of this whisky and common sugar boiled into syrup, and sold the same to divers and sundry persons at divers and sundry times, as a new syrup which he had devised or compounded, and called "Don't Care;" so that when certain persons came into his shop under pretence of buying a glass of soda water, but really with the intention of buying a drink of whisky, or a drink of which whisky was an essential and prominent ingredient, they usually asked for a glass of soda, and when asked what kind of syrup they desired, answered—"Don't Care," and thereupon the defendant or his employees would draw from the "Don't Care" stop of the fountain, this syrup composed of whisky and sugar as aforesaid, and fill the glass with more or less soda water, to suit the particular customer.

So far as I can learn the defendant is a young man, lately married into a respectable family, and without means or property, and is in many respects worthy of the Executive clemency which I recommend.

The lowest punishment prescribed for this offence in cases like the one under consideration, however guilty the party is, in my judgment and in the judgment of this community, so out of proportion to the turpitude involved in the act, or the loss sustained by the Government on account of it, that the defendant ought not to suffer it.

In consideration of the premises I respectfully recommend that the sentence of the defendant be commuted to one month's imprisonment and a fine of $100, or some equivalent thereto.

The defendant is now imprisoned in the jail of Marion county in pursuance of his sentence.

MATTHEW P. DEADY,
U. S. District Judge, Oregon.

Portland on Willamet, March 24, 1871.

I fully concur in the above recommendation.

J. C. CARTWRIGHT,
U. S. Attorney, Oregon.

Portland, Oregon, March 24, 1871.

AMUSEMENTS.

ORO FINO THEATER.—"Leah the Forsaken" was re-produced last night to a fine house, the attendance being much larger than on the evening before. The play was put on quite as well in general, as before, and in respect to some of the secondary characters, the performance was better. Mrs. Bates and Mr. Vinson sustained their parts with the same fine effect, while Mr. Bates made a better personation of Joseph; Miss Ingles, more confident of her ground, rendered the character of Old Martha very well indeed, considering that her experience in old woman characters is only of very recent date. Miss Cummings and Miss Minnie Pixley, each did better than on the first evening. Mrs. Bates, at the end of the scene in which Leah's curse is pronounced, had a tumultuous call before the curtain and was applauded enthusiastically. The Pixleys in the melange were encored at every appearance.

MISS LIZZIE INGLES' BENEFIT.—To-night Miss Lizzie Ingles will take a benefit tendered by the Oro Fino Dramatic Company, and for the occasion, the splendid English drama of "Lost in London" will be produced, Mrs. Bates in the star character of Nelly Armroyd, and the beneficiary in the character of Tilly Draggletharp, supported by a strong cast of the whole company. Miss Ingles is yet young in the profession, but by care and painstaking she is advancing rapidly. Since her engagement with the company, she has played all sorts of characters—young girls, old women, young men, boys, etc., etc., and in all, or most of them, she has acquitted herself from fair to very creditable or first rate. Some of her late personations have been considered well conceived and quite artistic in the performance. Taking into account her careful labor and efforts to render her parts in the entertainments at Oro Fino acceptable to the public, she deserves a rousing good benefit. The play to be presented has never been produced in Portland, and the melange to follow is an extra attractive one.

RECRUITING.—Quite a number of recruits have recently joined the Emmet Guard, and the effort to fill up the ranks is continued.

J. O'NEIL & Co. have just received and opened one of the best assorted lots of Gents' Furnishing Goods and Clothing ever brought into this city, consisting of all kinds of Clothing, Collars, Cuffs, Gloves, Ties, Hosiery, and a large invoice of the Star Brand, the best fitting and best made Shirt now worn. Their goods are of the latest styles and choicest patterns. Persons wishing spring goods and styles should not fail to give them a call. They cannot but be pleased with both their goods and prices.

We say it now as we've said it before,
That C. M. MARTIN'S GROCERY STORE
Is where you can make the best pickings
Of all sorts of game, and of chickens,
Of fresh butter and bouncing big eggs,
And fish of all sorts, dried or in kegs,
Of the best kind of bacon and hams,
And of pickles and jellies and jams;
Vegetables and fruits of thousands,
And everything good that in reason
You can ask or wish to make a good dish.

SPRING STYLES.—KOHN & FISHEL, as usual, are the first to fill their store with the new Spring Styles of Clothing and Furnishing Goods. Their stock is very large, and their goods of the best quality, and latest styles. Messrs. Kohn & Fishel buy their goods in large quantities, consequently, get them at low rates and can afford to sell cheap, which they intend to do.

They respectfully invite their friends and patrons to give them a call.

Do you desire a handsome Suit of Clothing? If you do, go to ISAAC BARMAN, corner First and Alder streets, Odd Fellows Temple.

BARBOUR'S LINEN THREAD is nicely put up in boxes, and with special reference to the Retail Trade, so that all numbers may be sold at one price.

BARBOUR'S C BEST THREAD is unequalled for strength and evenness of thread. Try it and be convinced of its superior qualities.

☞ Catarrh is a common disease, so common that snuffing and "hawking" reach you at every turn. Your foot slips in its nasty discharge, in the omnibus or in church, and its stench disgusts at the lecture or the concert. The proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy offers $500 reward for a case of Catarrh he cannot cure. Sold by druggists or send sixty cents to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 133 Seneca street, Buffalo, N. Y., and you will receive it by mail. Beware of counterfeits and worthless imitations. The genuine has Dr. Pierce's private U. S. Government Stamp on it.

Invigorate the Responsible Organ.

The stomach is the responsible organ of the system. If the digestion is imperfect, every member, every gland, every muscle, every nerve and fiber is more or less out of order. All the fluids are depraved. The brain is clouded. The spirits are depressed. All dyspeptics know this to be the truth. It is not, however, half the truth. Columns would be required to enumerate the pains and penalties of dyspepsia. Nor could any pen do them justice. Tens of thousands feel them; no man can describe them.

Can they be prevented? Can they be relieved? Can they be banished at once and forever? Unquestionably they can. No dyspeptic has ever taken Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in vain. Believe no one who says the complaint is incurable. This great vegetable stomachic will eradicate it—is eradicating it in thousands of cases over which medical practitioners have shaken their heads ominously, saying, "Nothing can be done."

The faculty has its fallacies. One of them is, that indigestion is the most difficult of all the ordinary ailments of mankind to combat and subdue. This is a mistake. Nothing can be easier than to conquer it if the true specific be administered. The vegetable combination which has become famous throughout the civilized world as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is an antidote to the disease which has never been known to fail, and fortunately it is everywhere procurable. If you wish to fool with the dyspepsia, try the pharmacopœia prescriptions. If you want to root it out and prevent its resurrection, take the Bitters daily. There is no discount on the testimony in its favor. If there is a man or woman who has ever tried it for indigestion without being benefitted, the fact has not transpired. Universal, uncontradicted praise arouches its wonderful tonic virtues.

[Concluded from First Page.]

Louis at last, in a towering rage, "and shall not be satisfied unless William promises me never to make any such underhanded attempts to get the better of me again."

"Tell him to be hanged," whispered Mark.

"You be ——, no," said William, recollecting himself. "I cannot use bad language. My friend," he continued, "I cannot promise you anything of the kind."

"Then I shall lick you till you do, you psalm-singing humbug," shouted Louis.

"Come on!" said William, lifting up his hand as if to commend his cause to heaven, and looking sanctimoniously out of the whites of his eyes. And it is well for him that Louis did not take him at his word; for, while one hand was lifted up, the other was encumbered with a bundle of good books which he was carrying to his summer house, and it would not have required much to knock him down. But Louis did not feel quite well. He had taken a blue pill that morning, and he put off the attack therefore till he should meet his adversary again.

Meanwhile, by Mark's advice, William ran off to the Brummagem bruiser, who put him up to all the latest dodges, and exercised him in the noble art to such good purpose that on his next encounter with Louis, after breakfast the next morning, he hit out a crashing blow between shoulder and knocked his enemy down. Louis was soon on his legs again, and ... too, did good execution with his fists; but he was clearly over-matched, and at the end of the first round had been punished pretty severely.

"Hot work, isn't it, my boy?" said William, chaffing him as he mopped the perspiration from his steaming forehead. "This is what you call your 'baptism of fire,' I suppose, eye?" Then he wrote home to his mother, on the back of a half-penny card, so that all the letter-carriers might see how pious he was: "Dear momma, I am fighting for my fatherland, as you know I call my garden. It is a fine name and creates sympathy. Glorious news! Aided by Providence, I have hit Louis in the eye. Thou may'st imagine His feelings. What wonderful events hast Heaven thus brought about! Your affectionate son William." Then he sang a hymn and went on with a second round.

Meanwhile, the other monitors looked on, not knowing exactly what to do.

"Oughtn't I to interfere?" asked John, addressing one of his favorite fags.

"No," said Billy, who was head fag, and twisted Johnnie round his finger. "You just sit where you are. You will only make a mess of it, and offend both of them. Give us that you are a 'neutral.'"

"Neutral!" growled John; "I hate neutrals. It seems to me a cold-blooded, cowardly thing to sit by and see two big fellows smash each other all to pieces about nothing at all. They are both in the wrong, and they ought not to fight. Let me go in at them."

"No, no," said Bobby, a clever, fair-haired boy, who kept John's accounts, and took care of his money. "You really can't mend it; and besides, you've got no clothes on. There is not a fellow in the school but will laugh at you, if you stood up in the garden. Sit still and grind away, old man, and make some more money, and be content that you live on an island, and can get things easily."

"I," said John, sulkily, "I don't half care enough certainly my clothes are not very respectable, and there is no time now to mend them. But look here, Bob; I mean to go in and help sponge the poor beggars if they get mauled."

"You may do that and welcome," replied Bobby. "You will make no enemies in that way, and it may cost you perhaps eighteen pence in ointment and plaster. But bless your heart, Johnnie, if you were to rig yourself out well enough to hold out against Louis or William, you would have to fork out a ten pound note or more."

Johnnie went on with his work in rather a gruffish humor for he had always been looked up to as the leading boy in the school, and he did not like to play second fiddle. He felt sure that if he had been half so natty and neat and up as he used to be, he might have stopped the fight in a moment. For the next half hour he cursed Billy and Bobby and all the other little sneaks who had ingratiated themselves into favor with him, by ... to save money. "Hang the ... ," he ... ried Johnnie to himself: "I'd ... half my shop to get my old prestige ... But it was too late now. Nevertheless he had his own way about the sprinkling, and certainly he did behave well there. At the end of every round that was fought out across the stream and bathed his head, for he wanted help the ... have him sherry and water out of ... bottle. "I am so very sorry for you, my dear Louis," said he, as the boy more dead than alive, struggled to his feet again.

"Leave me alone, kindly, John," said Louis; but, he added, looking somewhat reproachfully at his friend, "why don't you separate us? Don't you see that this great brute is too much for me? I had no idea that he could fight like that."

"What can I do?" said John. "You began it, you know, and you really must fight it out. I have no power.

"So it seems," replied Louis. "Ah, there was a time—well, thank you kindly, John, for—the sticking plaster."

"Come on!" shouted William, thirsting for more blood.

"Vive la guerre!" cried poor Louis, rushing blindly at his foe. Well and nobly he fought, but he could not stand his ground. When he did hit, indeed, he hit to some purpose, but seldom could he reach out far enough to do much damage. Foot by foot, yard by yard he was forced to take refuge in his arbor, from the windows of which ... ... from following.

... was plainly in the wrong. He ought ... calculated the other boy's strength ... attacking him, and deserved a licking ... his rashness. But he had had his licking ... and when William, who talked so big ... his peaceable disposition, and declared ... wanted to defend his "fatherland," ... him right across the garden, trampling ... and borders on his way, and then ... would break down his beautiful ... house, and bring Louis on his ... clearly felt that the other monitors ought to interfere. Aleck looked on from a ... distance, pondering which of the combatants would be tired first. Joseph stood ... trembling with fright, not daring to say a ... lest William should turn round upon ... and thrash him again; and John sat in his shop, grinding away like a nigger at a new rudder and a pair of oars which he was getting out for Louis' boat, in case he wanted to take advantage of the brook, for which service Louis would pay him handsomely and William abuse him cordially.

"I can't help it," said John, apologetically; make a rudder and some oars for you, too, and a boat beside, if you want one—that is, of course, if you pay me well."

"But I don't want one," answered William, angrily. "I have got no water to float it in, as you very well know." By which it will appear that John did not make many friends by his neutrality. "And just look here" continued William; "do you know where those cuts on my forehead came from? Why, from stones which you pitched across the water for Louis to throw at me."

"Can't help it, Bill; it is the law of neutrality."

"Neutrality, indeed! I call it brutality." And so William went across the garden again, leaving Johnnie at his work—of which, however, he began to feel thoroughly ashamed.

"Come and help a fellow, John," cried Louis in despair from his arbor. "I don't ask you to remember the days we have spent in here together, when you have been sick of your own shop. But you might do something for me, now that I am in such a desperate fix and don't know which way to turn."

"I am very sorry, Louis," said John, "but what can I do? It is no pleasure to me to see you thrashed. On the contrary, it would pay me much better to have a near neighbor well off and cheerful than crushed and miserable. Why don't you give in, Louis? It is of no mortal use to go on. He will make friends directly if you will give back the two little strips of garden; and if you don't, he will only smash your arbor to pieces, or keep you shut up there all dinner time and starve you out. Give in, old fellow. There's no disgrace in it. Everybody says how plucky you fought."

"Give in!" sneered Louis; that is all the comfort you have for a fellow, is it? Give in! Why, would you give in if that great brute was in front of your shop swearing that he would break it down? No disgrace, indeed! No, I don't think there is any disgrace in anything I have done; but, though my dear, dear arbor that I have spent so many weeks in building should be pulled down about my ears, and every flower in my garden should be rooted up, I would not change places with you, John, sitting there sleek and safe—no, not for all the gold that ever was coined! Give in, indeed! Mon Dieu, that I ever should have heard such a word as that come across our little stream."

So Johnnie began to discover that, if lookers-on see the most of the game, they do not always get the most enjoyment from it. But the bell now rang for dinner, and he followed the rest of the boys with some anxiety, not being quite easy in his mind as to the account he would have to give to Mrs. Europa of what had been going on.

"Louis and William are very late to-day," observed the dame, when dinner was half over. "Does any one know where they are?" And then bit by bit she learned from some of the boys sitting near her the whole story.

"And pray, John, why did you not separate them?" demanded the dame.

"Please, ma'am," answered Johnnie, "I was a neutral."

"A what, sir?" said she.

"A neutral, ma'am."

"Just precisely what you had no business to be," she returned. "You were placed in authority in order that you might act, not that you might stand aloof from acting. Any baby can do that. I might as well have made little George here a monitor, if I had meant him to have nothing to do. Neutral, indeed! Neutral is just a fine name for coward. Besides, there is no such thing. You must take one side or the other, do what you will. Now which side do you take, I wonder?"

A titter ran round the room, and the little boys began to whisper to one another something which appeared to be in their small estimation an excellent joke. It was good fun to them to see a monitor badgered, even if they should get paid out for it afterward.

"What are you saying?" said the dame. "Both sides, eye? Well, and how did you manage that, Master John?"

There was some more tittering and whispering and shuffling about on the forms, and then a chorus of voices said: "Please 'em, he sucked up to both of them."

"Just what 'neutrals' always do," said Mrs. Europa; "sucked up to both, I suppose, and pleased neither. Ah, no doubt," she continued, gradually gathering information, "offended Louis by always preaching at him that he was in the wrong; and offended William by supplying Louis with stones. Now, I tell you what it is, John, I have long watched your career with pain, and have seen how long you have been content to sacrifice everything—duty and influence and honor—for the sake of putting by a few paltry shillings. You have been badly advised. You have chosen to have about you a set of fags who are a credit to nobody, simply because they make better bargains for you in the things you sell to the other boys; and now you see the consequence. If such fellows as Ben and Hugh had been your fags, you know very well this disgraceful scene would never have taken place at all. You would have been sufficiently well trained and well equipped to command the respect of the other monitors, and the two rivals would not have dared to come to blows. There was a time when, if you so much as held up your finger, the whole school would tremble. Nobody trembles now. Nobody dares one farthing what you think or say. And why? Because you have grown a sloven and a screw, and boys despise both the one and the other. You ought to have prevented the fight from the first; failing in this, you ought, in conjunction with the other monitors, to have stepped in the moment the boys had proved their relative strength, and struck a fair balance between them. Instead of doing so, you sat coolly in your shop, supplying the means of carrying on the fight, and coining a few wretched coppers out of your schoolfellows' blows and wounds. You have been a bad friend to both of them. Well, some day, perhaps, you may need friends yourself. When you do, I hope you may find them. Take care that William, the peaceable, unaggressive boy, does not contrive (as I fully believe he will contrive) to get a footing on the river, where he can keep a boat, and then one fine morning take your fine island by surprise."

"It was Louis' own fault, ma'am," urged John. "He began it all. William was only defending his fatherland."

"Defending his grandmotherland," retorted the dame contemptuously. "If looks very much like self-defense, to chase a boy half across the playground and threaten to kick down his arbor. Very like self-defense, to train hard for six months, and then propose something which is sure to create a row. And although Louis had been in the wrong, he had also been severely punished, and it is time that he should be relieved. What! are those who make mistakes never to be helped out of them? Is it any the less incumbent on the strong to protect the weak, because the weak has got himself into a mess by its own fault? However, there is some excuse for William, who is half mad with the fever of success; but there is no excuse for you, who sat still in cold blood and looked on. You have abused the trust committed to you as one of the five monitors of the school, and your office shall be taken from you."

"Please 'em," said a chorus of little boys together; "please 'em, do let him off this time. He was so kind to Louis and William when they were bad. He brought their water, and bathed their faces, and stopped the bleeding, and did all sorts of things for them. Please 'em, let him off."

"Well," said the dame, much affected, "kindness to the wounded shall plead his own cause this once, and I will think of some punishment less severe. For I have hopes of Johnnie even yet, that he will rise to a sense of his high position in the school; and learn that duties cannot be coolly ignored because they are disagreeable; that he who shirks the responsibilities of doing right does in very deed and truth do wrong; that the true test of greatness is the ability to grapple with great difficulties; that it is but a sorry thing to boast of bravery and skill and power, if, just at the very instant when you are called upon to act, your resources fail you, and you whine out the miserable excuse that 'you don't exactly see how you can interfere.' If, indeed, such an excuse be allowed to stand—if it be really true that the head and champion of the school is thoroughly beaten by circumstances—utterly at a loss, at some critical moment, what is the right thing to do; let him confess at once that he is unequal to his place—that he is not the boy we took him for—that his courage has been overrated, and his reputation as a hero too cheaply earned; that for all his vaunted influence with others he is too weak to stay an unrighteous strife—to avert a storm of cruel, savage blows—to spare the infliction of wounds which will be gaping, and unhealed for long, long years to come, bearing on their ghastly face a bitter hatred for the foe that dealt them, and contempt for the 'neutral' friend who looked calmly on."

LAND DEPARTMENT

OREGON & CALIFORNIA RAILROAD COMPANY.

SALEM, OREGON, October 22, 1870.

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT IS MADE FOR information of all concerned:

First—Congress has granted to the Company all alternate sections of the public lands designated by odd numbers within a distance of thirty miles on each side of the railroad, excepting lands to which a pre-emption or homestead claim had attached prior to the withdrawal by Government of the lands co-terminus with the first division of located line from East Portland to Jefferson, at 12 M. February 16, 1870. The second division of located line from Jefferson to a point six miles south of Roseburg, May 1, 1870, and from the last named point to the California line, 1870.

Second—Persons who have valid pre-emption or homestead claims to any tract on an odd numbered section can purchase the same from the Railroad Company at the Government price of $1 25 per acre in greenbacks, and upon very favorable terms, if they so desire, by filing an abandonment of their claim in the U. S. Land Office, blanks for which will be furnished by the Land Agent of the Company. Such purchase from the Company has these advantages over a purchase from the Government: The party can leave the land if necessary; he can sell the land or mortgage it; he is saved the payment of lawyers' or agents' fees, and expense of witnesses to go to the Land Office to "prove up" his claim; he can get his title perfect in less time, and he can buy on credit at a low rate of interest.

Third—No sales will be made by the Company until the land is listed over to it by the United States Land Commissioner and Secretary of the Interior.

Purchasers are thus assured that the title they obtain is perfect. I. R. MOORES, f27d1dlaw Land Agent O. & C. R. R. Co., Salem
